

Do I have to change my login process by March 11, 2018?

If your website has a login that looks like this (could be many different colors or shapes) but your members enter their username, password, and security questions on the OBC: this is called a Login Button.

Good news! You do not have to change your login process.

If your website has a login that looks like this (could be many different colors or shapes or shows up when you hover your mouse) but your members enter their username on your website, and then password and security questions on the OBC: this is called a Direct Login Widget 1.0.
