

CU*Answers Leadership Study Guide Website

What's It All About?

This site acts as a gathering place for people to contribute, comment and consider the questions and issues of our network as the CU*Answers Board of Directors choose a new CEO in 2022.

As a network, we want to have as many tools as possible in front of us to make this a successful process. The CU*Answers Leadership Study Guide website will act as one tool in which everyone in the network – employees, partners, board members and candidates can (and is encouraged to) participate.

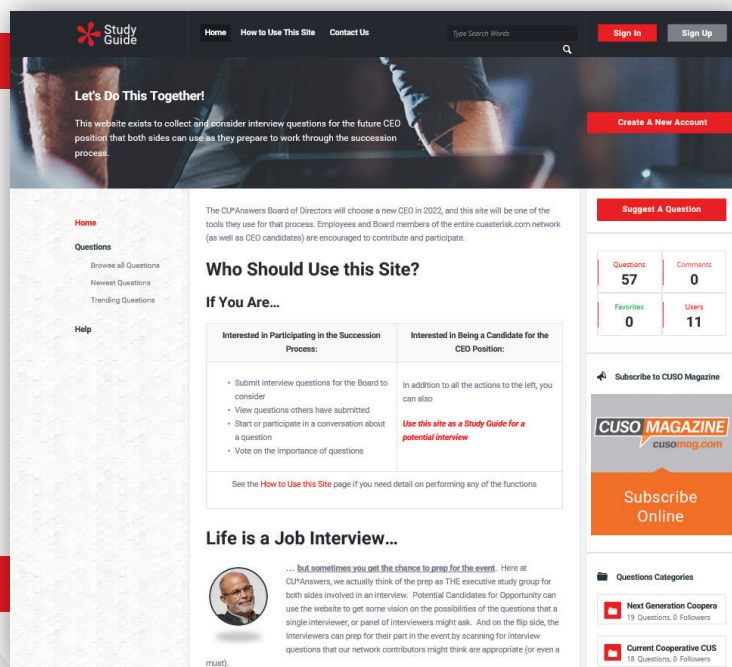

Who is the Audience?

The entire world. But more specifically, this site is intended for members of the cuasterisk.com network, and others in the credit union industry. Participants fall into three major categories:

- All those interested in the 2022 CU*Answers CEO Succession process and want to contribute to or follow the journey
- Members of the CU*Answers Board of Directors, who can contribute as well as use the site to forge questions that will be used in interviews with the candidates
- The candidates themselves, who can contribute as well as prepare for interviews

What Can You Do?

- Submit a question for consideration. If there's a question or issue that you think needs to be addressed by the candidates, use the "Suggest a Question" function.
- Comment on or join a discussion about a specific question. Even if you didn't propose a question, you can actively participate in a discussion about it.
- Vote on the importance of a question or issue. Click on an up or down arrow to signify how important a question is to the succession process.
- View all the questions on the site. See what everyone has contributed by clicking on "All Questions". You can also specify a set of questions based on their category.

Life is a Job Interview...

... but sometimes you get the chance to prep for the event. Here at CU*Answers, we actually think of the prep as THE executive study group for both sides involved in an interview. Potential Candidates for Opportunity can use the website to get some vision on the possibilities of the questions that a single interviewer, or panel of interviewers might ask. And on the flip side, the interviewers can prep for their part in the event by scanning for interview questions that our network contributors might think are appropriate (or even a must).

Like Answerbook, this Study Guide website gives both sides of the interview, and Network Voyeurs a chance to get a "voice of the participants" point of view. It does everything but give the study participants the answers. That is for the candidates to prep for, and for the interviewers to prioritize as the things they would like to hear from candidates.

The interesting thing about this process is that it is truly a preparation guide to consider "what will be on the test, and how comprehensive might the test be?". Once armed with this insight and perspective, everyone can approach the executive development programs with goals — help me prep for these question brainstorming, and help me create an interview that fits the goals for this position.
